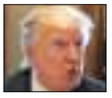
CLIMATE CHANGE TO BE CUT FROM REVIEWS



President Donald Trump is set to sign an order to greatly reduce the role climate change plays in decision making across the U.S. government, Bloomberg reported, citing a person familiar with the administration's plan. The order, which could be signed this week, aims to reverse former Democratic President Barack Obama's broad approach for addressing climate change, the report said. The directive will urge the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to undo the Clean Power Plan, the Bloomberg report said. The Clean Power Plan is Obama's centerpiece initiative to combat climate change, requiring states to slash emissions of carbon dioxide, but it was never implemented due to legal challenges launched by several Republican states. MILITARY HEADS GRILLED OVER NUDE PHOTOS

2 Senators grilled the Navy and the Marine Corps' top leaders amid a growing scandal involving a private Facebook group and its surreptitious distribution of explicit images of women in the armed forces — often with obscene, misogynist commentary. The Facebook group, called "Marines United," is reported to have nearly 30,000 followers, including active-duty U.S. Marines, Marine Corps veterans and British Royal Marines. "If we can't crack Facebook, how are we supposed to be able to confront Russian aggression and cyberhacking throughout our military?" Democratic Sen. Kirsten Gillibrand asked during a Senate Armed Services Committee Hearing. Gillibrand said online harassment had become evident as early as 2013 and military leaders were made aware of it but have still been unable to stop it. REUTERS

ROCKET LAUNCH IN FLA. DELAYED DUE TO WINDS

3 Space Exploration Technologies, or SpaceX, on Tuesday delayed the launch of a rocket set to carry a commercial communications satellite into orbit, because of high winds at its Florida launch site. Wind gusts of up to 25 mph at NASA's Kennedy Space Center in Florida forced SpaceX to scrub the launch of the Falcon 9 rocket that was to have put into orbit EchoStar XXIII, a commercial communications satellite for EchoStar Corporation, the privately owned company said on social network Twitter. "Standing down due to high winds; working toward next available launch opportunity," the company messaged moments after the launch window opened. REUTERS

FRANCE'S FILLON UNDER FRAUD INVESTIGATION

4 French presidential candidate Francois Fillon was put under formal investigation by magistrates on suspicion of embezzling state funds — a move that may ruin the right-winger's hopes of winning power in May. Fillon's campaign has been dogged by allegations he lavishly paid his British wife Penelope and two of his children hundreds of thousands of euros of public money for assistance, but he has refused to pull out of the presidential race. The former prime minister had been due to meet investigators on Wednesday but, in a surprise move, the meeting was brought forward by 24 hours. The 63-year-old conservative candidate was put under formal investigation on suspicion of diverting public funds, complicity in misappropriating funds, receiving the funds and not declaring assets fully, a judicial source said. New Yorkers weather winter's finale

Snow, sleet torment NYC, though the first day of spring is less than a week away.

AMANDA MIKELBERG
@MetroNewYork
amanda.mikelberg@metro.us

A blizzard swept through the Northeast on Tuesday, grounding thousands of flights, canceling classes and pummeling those who ventured out onto snowbound streets.

In New York City, however, the streets were fairly quiet, as Stella brought pounding wind, sleet and just enough snow — 7.2 inches in Central Park — to justify a day off of school.

The historic blizzard that meteorologists portended would bring 1 to 2 feet of snow was downgraded early Tuesday morning as rain diminished snow totals and the worst of the storm veered northwest. Areas in the Bronx and Queens saw the most snow in the city, with just over 8 inches by early evening.

Mayor Bill de Blasio announced that school would resume Wednesday but that parking regulations would remain suspended, adding that he discourages driving and urged people to avoid the slick sidewalks.

"Mother Nature is an unpredictable lady sometimes."

Gov. Andrew Cuomo

Wind speeds averaged 20 mph throughout the day with gusts reported at 35 and 50 mph. Above-ground MTA train service was restored at 6 p.m.

Some 50 million people from Pennsylvania to Maine faced a "rapidly intensifying nor'easter" over the course of the day that was unusual for striking so late in the winter, according to the National Weather Service. Many heeded official advice to stay home.

Still, some in the region could expect up to 2 feet of snow by early Wednesday, the weather service predicted, with the worst blizzard conditions forecast for parts of New England.

Governors in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Virginia had earlier declared states of emergency. Above-ground parts of New York City's subway service were suspended, and Metro-North commuter service to the suburbs shut down at noon. Train services to Boston and Albany were also suspended.

"Mother Nature is an unpredictable lady sometimes," Gov. Andrew Cuomo, said at a news conference. "She was unpredictable today."

While the city got less snow than expected, areas upstate were already buried in more than was forecast, he said, and up to 30 inches was still expected in central parts of the state.

Still, life was disrupted for many in the city, although children and dogs found even a few inches of snow sufficient for play.

"It's a ghost town," Ali Naji, 33, said as he sat listening to Mexican pop music amid the emptiness of his usually bustling convenience store in Brooklyn's Fort Greene neighborhood.

In Brooklyn's Bedford-Stuyvesant neighborhood, Octavia Chavez-Richmond emerged from a subway station in the early afternoon after traveling from Providence, Rhode Island. The young actress came to the city to star in a low-budget movie.

"Filming is tomorrow so they didn't officially tell me whether it's still happening," she said, "so I just came anyway and we'll see."

Amid Winter Storm Stella, upper Manhattan eatery delivers in extreme weather

The usually bustling Pick and Eat on West 177th Street in upper Manhattan was quiet on Tuesday morning, aside from the patter of sleet hitting its windows.

With snow on the ground, and strong wind gusts blowing any of it in the air in a horizontal direction, there weren't many customers brave enough to go outside. New York City had essentially called a snow day.

But an empty store didn't mean Pick and Eat didn't have any customers.

"On a day like this, our Seamless orders can double," manager Jennifer Sopkobski said. She has two deliverymen on motor bikes serving customers between 160th and 196th streets.

Pick N' Eat on West 177th Street in Manhattan was still open, and delivering, on Tuesday morning, as sleet pelted the ground. AMANDA MIKELBERG

"Depending on how risky it is for them, I will limit the service area, but today we are doing normal service," she said.

"We just want to have the best service for our customers no matter what," she said.

The cafe and lunch spot is a staple in the neighborhood, serving fresh juices, cappuccino, salads, pastas and Spanish house specialties with comfortable seating and free Wi-Fi.

"We never close. You never know what the storm can bring — sometimes it's a lot of customers. Last year it was crazy in here during a snowstorm," she said.

But because most of the roads in Washington Heights were not yet cleared of the wintry mix of snow and slush as of 10 a.m., Sopkobski had few people to greet her. She was cheerful as ever, despite the fact that Winter Storm Stella was making itself heard.

Her attitude appears to have rubbed off on her employees. One of her deliverymen came out of the cold with a smile.

"It's not so bad out there," said the man, who would only give his first name, Jose. "I like it because I don't see it every day. It's fun." AMANDA MIKELBERG

GETTING PLOWED

Porn website plows snow for New Yorkers in need

Need to get plowed? Pornhub was offering to help.

As the region braced for a foot or more of snow Tuesday, the adult entertainment site is prepared to help anyone who "wants to get plowed."

Pornhub has sponsored over two dozen snow plow trucks in New York, Boston and New Jersey to plow streets and businesses free of charge.

The branded trucks are emblazoned with Pornhub's orange and white logo and have been perusing city streets since the first flakes fell early Tuesday morning, according to a company spokesman.

"We thought it an opportune time to lend a helpful hand and plow our fans, courtesy of their favorite adult entertainment company," Pornhub Vice President Corey Price said.

The trucks were available on demand. Small businesses and people were encouraged to email requests to phubplows@gmail.com.

This will be the first time Pornhub has plowed snow in these cities, but the site is considering expanding snow removal services.

"It's another way we are giving back to our fans, because after all, they are the most important to us," Price said.

The free plowing is an extension of the site's philanthropic efforts, a spokesman said. Pornhub partners with charitable organizations to raise funds and also has a scholarship fund.

People taking advantage of the service Tuesday were showing their thanks on Twitter with the hashtag #PornhubPlows.

Ponies spotted on the loose in Staten Island in middle of snowstorm

Police help apprehend the runaway ponies. @NYPDSPECIALOPS/TWITTER

Gusting winds during Tuesday's blizzard-like conditions gave two ponies a morning of freedom to frolic on Staten Island.

An off-duty police officer heading to work spotted the ponies — one white and the other brown — at about 10 a.m. in the middle of the road near Richmond Avenue and Hylan Boulevard. The man was able to capture them by using a tow strap and tied them to a lamppost while he called the police.

Officers arrived by 11:20 a.m. and returned the ponies to their owner, who lives on Wakefield Road on the island's south shore. The wind apparently blew open a barn door, giving the ponies a chance to romp in the snowy weather.

Mayor Bill de Blasio praised the officer during a news conference to update the city's response to the snowstorm.

"I want to thank our cowboy officer for having quickly addressed the situation," he said. No injuries were reported, and the owner is not facing any summons.

Paul McCartney should wait to get back Beatles songs, not sue, Sony/ATV says

Michael Jackson bought hundreds of Lennon-McCartney song rights in 1985.

Sony/ATV Music Publishing is arguing in federal court that Paul McCartney should wait a little longer rather than continue his lawsuit to reclaim ownership of hundreds of the Beatles' songs.

In a filing this week with the U.S. District Court in Manhattan, a lawyer for Sony/ATV said the publisher has never challenged the validity of McCartney's notices to terminate its copyrights of the songs, starting in October 2018.

As a result, McCartney's Jan. 18 lawsuit "impermissibly seeks an advisory opinion on a hypothetical claim" and should be dismissed for the time being, the lawyer, Donald Zakarin, wrote.

Lawyers for McCartney had no immediate comment on Tuesday.

The rock legend, 74, was outbid by Michael Jackson in 1985 for the rights to songs credited to McCartney and John Lennon such as "I Want to Hold Your Hand," "Yesterday" and "Hey Jude."

These rights were rolled a decade later into Sony/ATV's possession. Jackson's estate sold its stake in that venture to Sony for $750 million last year.

McCartney sued after a British court rejected similar claims against Sony/ATV's Gloucester Place Music unit by Duran Duran, saying the pop group's contracts were governed by English law and barred members from reclaiming their songs.

Former Beatle Paul McCartney is seeking to regain rights to his and John Lennon's own music. GETTY IMAGES

Zakarin said McCartney's claims are also governed by English law, and that he should wait for Duran Duran to finish its appeal rather than engage in "forum shopping" in the United States.

"A dismissal without prejudice now would spare this court the need to issue a decision that may be unnecessary pending the outcome of Gloucester while assuring that, if and when a claim is ever ripe, U.K. law will have been settled," Zakarin wrote.

Revisions to U.S. copyright law in 1976 let authors reclaim song rights after certain periods of time elapsed.

McCartney wants the court to declare he would not breach any contract by exercising termination rights. His case could affect other artists who signed contracts outside the United States.

U.S. District Judge Edgardo Ramos is scheduled to consider Zakarin's letter at an April 5 conference, ahead of an expected formal motion to dismiss McCartney's lawsuit. REUTERS

Why Aren't Doctors Telling About These Two Often

Two Advanced Medical Treatments Every Knee Arthritis Sufferer

By NY Pain MD

NY Pain MD* is a medical clinic with locations in Midtown NYC and Uptown NYC that has treated thousands of knee arthritis and joint pain patients.

Here is what every knee arthritis sufferer should know about the best treatments and options available today. Including when and why you should consider each of these 2 treatment approaches to get maximum results.

If you suffer with knee or other join arthritis pain, you have probably already tried many treatments ... especially countless pain medications. Experienced doctors understand that, even though pain medications such as anti-inflammatory pain pills are part of the recommended early treatment plan for knee arthritis pain... they are rarely the answer over the longer term.

In most cases they have minimal results (if any) and have a laundry list of potential side effects. Some being serious and even life threatening.

Are There Any Better Options?

Thankfully, advancements in science and technology come extremely fast. And now there are two very good options for knee arthritis to help relieve the pain.

Two options that a lot of knee arthritis sufferers have never heard of.

Before we get into the two treatments, please understand this...

NY Pain MD is a well established medical clinic that has treated thousands of knee arthritis sufferers and joint and back pain sufferers. Patients travel from all over the area and even several states away from NYC to be treated at one of their clinics because they want the best medical treatments available. What you are about to discover are two REAL medical treatments. Not miracle cures you see on infomercials or non-medical treatments promoted on the internet.

Know this fact: There is no cure for arthritis. But there are these two treatments that have already helped thousands of knee arthritis sufferers - possibly just like you.

The first treatment is more common than the second. Even if you have heard of this treatment - or even tried it without good results - please read this. You will find out why it may not have worked for you and how you may be able to get much better results.

#1 Viscosupplementation

Viscosupplementation has gained quite a bit of popularity in recent years and it has gotten mixed results for a couple of reasons.

But before we get into that,here's what you need to know about viscosupplementation.

When you have arthritis, you suffer a decrease in the lubrication fluids in your knees.

In other words, your knee joints basically "dries up."

The lubricating fluid that decreases is called "synovial fluid." pharmaceutical companies (with the help of doctors) can now make natural synovial fluid gel-like compounds that, during viscosupplementation treatments. Doctors can precisely introduce directly into the knee and other joints.

This helps replace the lubricating fluid to the knee joint - allowing it to move more freely and smoothly and often decreasing or even eliminating the pain.

What Results Can Be Expected?

Like all medical treatments, the results vary and can not be predicted. But many knee arthritis sufferers get dramatic results. It is not uncommon for patients to either postpone knee replacement surgery for years... or even permanently cancel it.

But There Is A BIG Problem

The key is the treatment must be EXTREMELY PRECISE. If the procedure is slightly off, the medication will not get into the knee joint and the treatment will not work.

That's why the experts at NY Pain MD use Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology so they can actually see the lubricant going directly into the knee joint during the treatment.

Research shows that doctors performing joint injections without this technology can miss the joint as much as 30% of the time.

If you have tried viscosupplementation without this imaging technology without good results - this may be why.

That's why NY Pain MD takes it even one step further. They do not just use one step process of advanced imaging during treatment - they use two in their "double confirmation" process. This is to ensure patients get the best possible results.

Another Important Factor

Viscosupplementation medications also come in several different "brands" and chemical make-ups. Just like all medications, some people respond better to one than another. So, the experts at NY Pain MD use several and great effort is taken to figure out what is the best one for YOU.

One last thing: The experts at NY Pain MD have found that earlier you start Viscosupplementation the better.

This is most likely because the longer you wait - the more joint destruction takes place.

That's why NY Pain MD is now seeing so many patients as young as 35 to 40.

Summary: If you have knee arthritis pain and have not tried. Viscosupplementation you should look into it as soon as possible.

If you have tried it without good results. you may still be able to get great results with the proper imaging and specific medication.

What Should You Do If Viscosupplementation Fails?

When conservative treatment, including viscosupplementation fails ... most knee arthritis sufferers believe their only option is total knee replacement surgery.

This is not true...and here is why

There is another treatment for serious knee arthritis pain most people (and even doctors) do not know about.

#2: Radiofrequency Treatment

This treatment is technically called, "Radiofrequency Neurotomy." Or RF for short.

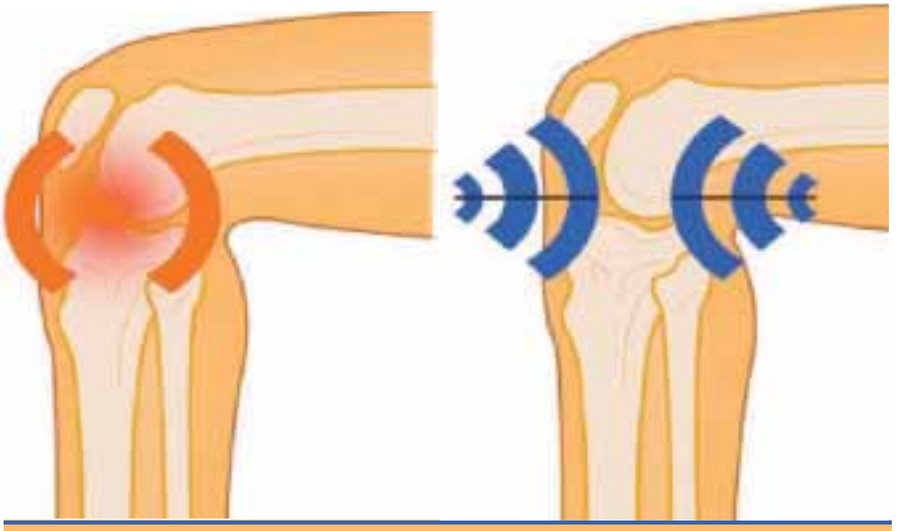
RF is a procedure that is based the theory that blocking the nerve supply to the painful area may alleviate pain and restore function.

ADVERTISEMENT

Knee Arthritis Sufferers Successful Treatments?

Needs To Know - Before Or After Knee Replacement Surgery

Advanced Treatment Uses Medical Radio Frequencies Waves To Relieve Pain



Science rescues knee arthritis sufferers?: Radio Frequency Waves are used to block the nerve supply to the painful area and may alleviate pain and restore function to many. Many patients still in pain after a knee replacement may respond very well to these treatments allowing the possibility of avoiding additional surgery.

Several branches of nerves that surround the knee are known as "genicular nerves."

Radiofrequency waves are delivered to the genicular nerves under advanced imaging to "block" the nerve from transmitting pain signals.

There are two distinct parts to this treatment. First, a test, diagnostic "G Block" procedure is done to determine if the procedure is going to decrease pain and improve function.

If this first "test" procedure is successful, then one to two weeks later, Radio Frequency waves are applied for term relief.

Is It Safe?

Research has shown this to provided significant relief for some patients. to procedure to be safe and effective.

One study published November 4, 2010 in the journal Pain found that RF treated subjects on average "achieved at least 50% knee pain relief at 1,4 and 12 weeks, respectively. No patient reported a post procedure adverse event during the follow-up period.

Some studies indiciate some patients may get years of relief in some cases. "RF neurotomy (radio frequency treatment) of genicular nerves leads to significant pain reduction and functional improvement in a subset of elderly chronic knee osteoarthritis pain, and thus may be an effective treatment in such cases."

It should also be mentioned that, like all procedures, results will vary patient to patient

Who Should Try This Treatment?

RF should be considered after other treatments, such as anti-inflammatory pain medication and viscosupplementation do not offer good enough results.

RF can be utilized before resorting to total knee replacement. RF allows many patients to avoid knee replacement surgery.

RF has also been found effective AFTER knee replacement surgery when the patient still feels pain.

The pain after a failed knee replacement surgery can be debilitating and this procedure can be the only thing that helps and give you relief.

What To Do Next If You Are In Pain

Here is the "X" factor many do not consider that might be the difference between you getting the best possible treatment or not.

Many experts suggest choosing a medical clinic that offers all these treatments and has the proper, most advanced technology all under one roof.

This way, the doctors working on your case can give you a proper examination and advise the best possible treatment plan for your individual case.

Several experts work as a team to offer you the best treatment options at the appropriate time to maximize results. It is also very convenient to have all your doctors and treatments in one place. Traveling to different offices can be time consuming and even more expensive.

NY Pain MD believes this "X" factor is one of the reasons so many knee arthritis sufferers travel from all over to be treated at their advanced medical clinics.

NY Pain MD offers a limited number of complimentary knee arthritis treatment screenings every month. These screenings are a way for knee arthritis sufferers to get some of their ques-tions answered and see if they are a candidate for one of the cutting-edge treatments offered at NY Pain MD

If you would like a complimentary screening, just call 855-456-PAIN [7246] and tell the scheduling coordinator "I would like a complimentary knee arthritis screening." The screenings fill up fast every month. If you do not call in time to get one this month, the scheduling coordiantators will get you appointed for next month

This screening is no cost and no obligation. Many of the treatments offered are covered by many insurance plans and Medicare

US gives Florida nightclub shooting victims nearly $8.5 million

The victims of a mass shooting at a Florida nightclub in June 2016 will receive nearly $8.5 million for emotional and financial support for victims' families, those wounded in the attack and responders, the U.S. Department of Justice said on Tuesday.

In a statement, the department's Office for Victims of Crime (OVC) said the funds would be granted on Wednesday and distributed by officials in Florida, where 49 people were killed at a gay nightclub in Orlando in the deadliest mass shooting in modern U.S. history.

Shooter Omar Mateen was killed in a shootout with police after he took hostages during a three-hour standoff inside the Pulse nightclub. He also wounded dozens more people in the June 12, 2016 attack.

"This award will reimburse victim services costs for operation of the Family Assistance Center in the immediate aftermath of the shooting, and ensure that victims, witnesses and first responders receive necessary services to help them adjust in the aftermath of violence, begin the healing process and cope with probable re-traumatization," Marilyn McCoy Roberts, the office's acting director, said in a statement.

Similar funding was provided to help victims in other mass shootings in recent years, including in San Bernardino, California, and Charleston, South Carolina, the department said in a statement. REUTERS

ISIS Mosul commander killed, government forces battle for bridge

A member of Iraq's elite Counterterrorism Service sits in an armed vehicle as they advance towards Mosul's al-Nasser neighbourhood on Tuesday during the ongoing offensive to retake the city from Islamic State group fighters. GETTY IMAGES

Iraqi government forces killed the Islamic State commander of Mosul's Old City on Tuesday as the battle for the militants' last stronghold in Iraq focused on a bridge crossing the Tigris river.

As fighting intensified on Tuesday after the previous day's heavy rains, civilians streamed out of western neighborhoods recaptured by the government, cold and hungry but relieved to be free of the militants' grip.

IS snipers were slowing the advance of Interior Ministry Rapid Response units on the Iron Bridge linking western and eastern Mosul but the elite forces were still inching forward, officers said.

Government forces also pushed into areas of western Mosul, Islamic State's last redoubt in the city that has been the de facto capital of their self-declared caliphate.

Federal police killed the military commander of the Old City, Abu Abdul Rahman al-Ansary, during operations to clear Bab al-Tob district, a federal police officer said. With many IS leaders having already retreated from Mosul, Ansary's death comes as blow to the militants as they defend their shrinking area of control street-by-street and house-by-house.

Capturing the Iron Bridge would mean Iraqi forces hold three of the five bridges in Mosul that span the Tigris, all of which have been damaged by the militants and U.S.-led air strikes. The southernmost two have already been retaken.

Near the Mosul Museum, Iraq forces used armored vehicles and tanks to attack snipers pinning down troops clearing areas around the bridge.

An airstrike targeting one Islamic State position hit a building, engulfing nearby troops in smoke and dust.

Since starting the offensive in October, Iraqi forces with U.S.-led coalition support have retaken eastern Mosul and about 30 percent of the west from the militants, who are outnumbered but fiercely defending their last stronghold in Iraq.

For much of Tuesday, the troops were within 330 feet of the bridge.

"It's very key for our forces to secure the riverside and prevent Daesh militants from turning around our advancing forces," a Rapid Response spokesman said in the morning, using an Arab acronym for Islamic State.

They expected to gain control of the Iron Bridge and the nearby area by the end of the day, he said. REUTERS

"We are still moving toward the Iron Bridge. We are taking out snipers hiding in the surrounding building, we are still pushing for the Iron Bridge."

Small Mexican company wants to light Trump's border wall

GETTY IMAGES

Among the hundreds of companies expressing interest in helping to build U.S. President Donald Trump's southern border wall, one four-member concern stands out: It is from Mexico.

Ecovelocity, based in the central city of Puebla, is betting it can provide cheap industrial LED lights for the project, which has sparked the ire of Mexicans.

Theodore Atalla, Ecovelocity's owner, is an Egyptian native of Greek heritage who has made Mexico his home for most of the past two decades. He said his firm looked to undercut competition by providing lighting it imports mostly from China.

"It would only be on the Mexican side because I don't think we would be allowed to work on the other side," Atalla said in an interview. "They said they only wanted American products."

Trump has vowed to start work quickly on the barrier along the nearly 2,000-mile U.S.-Mexico border to prevent illegal immigrants and drugs from crossing to the north. He has repeatedly said Mexico will pay for it, something the Mexican government has flatly said it will not do.

Parts of the border are already divided by high fences, and a huge part of the boundary runs along the Rio Grande river.

Some 640 firms, mostly from the United States, have put their names forward to participate in the design and construction of the wall, the U.S. government's website for business opportunities shows.

Companies based in Spain, Germany, South Africa, Britain, Ireland, Puerto Rico and Canada are among others on the list.

Ecovelocity is the only one registered in Mexico, possibly a sign of the depth of feeling against the barrier south of the border, where there has been a surge in patriotism triggered by Trump's repeated swipes at the country. REUTERS

New York attorney general: Tillerson used email alias at Exxon to talk climate

Secretary of State Rex Tillerson, the former chairman and chief executive of Exxon Mobil Corp., used an alias email address while at the oil company to send and receive information related to climate change and other matters, according to New York Attorney General Eric Schneiderman.

The attorney general's office said in a letter on Monday that it found Tillerson had used an alias email address under the pseudonym "Wayne Tracker" from at least 2008 through 2015.

Wayne is Tillerson's middle name.

The letter was sent to a New York state judge overseeing Schneiderman's investigation into whether Exxon misled shareholders and the public about climate change.

Rex Tillerson GETTY IMAGES

In a statement on Monday, Exxon spokesman Alan Jeffers said, "The email address, Wayne.Tracker@exxonmobil.com, is part of the company's email system and was put in place for secure and expedited communications between select senior company officials and the former chairman for a broad range of business-related topics."

Jeffers said the company had provided 2.5 million pages of documents in response to a subpoena from Schneiderman's office and would respond to the claims in the letter in court filings.

A State Department spokeswoman declined to comment on the matter.

The letter, seen by Reuters, said Exxon had not previously disclosed the alias account. It asked the judge to order Exxon to explain whether documents from the "Wayne Tracker" email and 34 additional accounts assigned to other Exxon executives and board members had been preserved.

The letter said that Exxon had produced some 60 documents bearing the "Wayne Tracker" email but never said it was used by Tillerson for relevant communications at Exxon. REUTERS

Vienna again ranked world's nicest city, and Baghdad worst

Culture and low costs help place Vienna, Austria, as the top city in the world in quality of life. GETTY IMAGES

Vienna, Austria's grand capital on the Danube River, has topped consulting firm Mercer's list of cities offering the highest quality of life for the eighth year in a row, while Baghdad is again considered the worst place to live.

The survey of 231 cities helps companies and organizations determine compensation and hardship allowances for international staff. It uses dozens of criteria such as political stability, health care, education, crime, recreation and transport.

Global centers London, Paris, Tokyo and New York City did not even make the top 30, lagging behind most big German, Scandinavian, Canadian, New Zealand and Australian cities.

Singapore was the highest ranked Asian city at 25, while 29th-placed San Francisco was the United States' highest entry. Top of the list in Africa was South Africa's Durban at 87.

Vienna's 1.8 million inhabitants benefit from the city's cafe culture and museums, theaters and operas. Rents and public transport costs in the city, whose architecture is marked by its past as the center of the Hapsburg empire, are cheap compared with other western capitals.

Switzerland's Zurich, New Zealand's Auckland, Germany's Munich and Canada's Vancouver followed Vienna in the top five of most pleasant cities to live in.

Baghdad was again ranked lowest in the world. Waves of sectarian violence have swept through the Iraqi capital since the U.S.-led invasion in 2003.

Six years into Syria's bloody war, Damascus was ranked seventh from bottom, with Bangui in the Central African Republic, Yemeni capital Sanaa, Haiti's Port-au-Prince, Sudan's Khartoum and Chad's N'Djamena filling out the end of the list.

Adorable BBC viral family opens up

The internet's favorite family is here, and they're speaking out about going viral.

Robert Kelly, an East Asian policy expert, Skyped in once again to BBC — but this time he was joined by his wife Kim Jung-A and their little ones intentionally.

Honestly, they seem embarrassed by the attention while their daughter, ever the real star of the show these people call their daily lives, bumbles about being super cute and noncooperative. "It's a comedy of errors," Kelly recalls fondly of the viral video. "[Our daughter] was in a hippity-hoppity mood."

Someone get this girl her own show, please.

Alison Brie and Dave Franco tie the knot

Another day, another low-key, quiet marriage. People reports that actors Dave Franco, 31, and Alison Brie, 34, have secretly wed. At this point, do celebrities get married any other way?

The couple has notoriously stayed under the radar during the entirety of their relationship, but Brie — who you might remember from "Community" or "Mad Men" — opened up last year about finding the strong-eyebrowed love of her life. "Marriage never really interested me, I guess because I was very focused on my work," she told Yahoo! Style. "I just met that person that I was like, 'Well, I'm really in love with you, and would like to grow old with you.'" Aw.

The couple announced their engagement in August 2015 after three years of dating. They met at a Mardi Gras parade in New Orleans which, somehow, seems about right. Honestly, maybe we should all be finding love at debaucherous, colorful celebrations in sweaty, party cities. It's not the worst idea.

Rachel Lindsay has a high tolerance for BS

Our long national nightmare — the 21st season of "The Bachelor" — is finally over. But "The Bachelorette" has just begun, and it already looks like it's going to be one of those terrifying waking dreams that you can't quite snap out of.

Even though it's 2017, the franchise is proving that it has no idea how to deal with race. And Rachel Lindsay, who is making major waves as the first black Bachelorette, is already dealing with some racially charged skullduggery. When "The Bachelorette" introduced a handful of the contestants who would be vying for Lindsay's heart, things took an awkward, supremely ignorant turn.

Some future contestant/random dude named Dean had this to say upon meeting his maybe future wife: "I'm ready to go black, and I'm never going back." Ex-squeeze me?

Lindsay handled it with poise and grace because she's a professional, I guess. But according to Refinery29, Twitter wasn't having it.

Can we all just agree that this upcoming season is probably going to go up in flames?

I, for one, can't wait.

What Amber Tamblyn named her daughter

Remember sweet baby Mustard Witch? Turns out Amber Tamblyn and husband David Cross were trolling us all with that birth announcement. Called it!

Tamblyn, 33, took to Instagram to share her daughter's real name — and a sweet letter that Hillary Clinton wrote the tot.

Writing about the letter, which essentially congratulates Marlow Alice Cross on being so brave as to be born, Tamblyn says, "A letter from one spectacular woman who has lived so much to another who has only just begun. My heart is as full as this diaper I'm about to change."

This baby is not even a month old, and she's getting letters from the lady who was supposed to be president.

I see you, Marlow. Doing the damn thing while still in diapers. Good on you.

'Get Out' star has some words for Samuel L. Jackson

Have you guys seen "Get Out?" It's made nearly $100 million at the box office, so I'm guessing yes. I saw it, and I liked it. Apparently, Samuel L. Jackson liked it, too. Except for one thing.

According to Vulture, the film prompted Jackson to stumble into the Hot 97 radio station and wonder aloud what "Get Out" would have been like "with an American brother who really feels that."

The film stars Daniel Kaluuya, a black British actor with Ugandan parents who probably has never experienced racism or racial tension or a series of racially charged microaggressions or anything.

Now, Kaluuya, 27, is talking to GQ and airing his own frustrations. "Big up to Samuel L. Jackson … here's the thing about that critique though … I've had to wrestle with people going, 'You're too black.' Then I come to America and they say, 'You're not black enough.'" He continued, "I resent that I have to prove that I'm black."

How to have more sex

Sexperts weigh in on how to cure a dry spell.

SHARON FEIEREISEN
letters@metro.us

Skipping ice cream and hitting the gym may not be most people's idea of fun, but few would argue the merits of having sex — an activity that's pleasurable and good for you. But as with most enjoyable pastimes, life and all of its stressors often get in the way. So, it may not surprise you that according to a study published in the journal Archives of Sexual Behavior, Americans' sex lives have been drastically declining in recent years.

If this statement applies to you, break the cycle! We spoke with three sexperts to get their tips on what you can do ... to do it more often.

Love yourself naked

Project Soulmate matchmakers Jennifer Zucher and Lori Zaslow say it's important to feel confident and not be afraid to make the first move. "If you love yourself and feel sexy then you will be more confident in the bedroom, which will turn your partner on," says Zucher. "So be comfortable in your own skin and wear lingerie that makes you feel sexy."

Ditch the bed

"It's important to mix up where you're having sex to keep things interesting and keep your partner on their toes. Try the kitchen table, bathroom, and balcony — be creative!" says

With a little extra effort, you and your partner can turn up the heat.

Zucher. You can also try role playing. Ask your partner their fantasies and make them into a reality — and don't just act out the part, dress for it, too, she says.

Plan for spontaneity

"We're all busy and sometimes we even have to schedule our sex lives," says Tristan Weedmark, We-Vibe's "global passion ambassador."

"So planning and talking to your partner about your mutual openness for quickies lets you take advantage of those 10 minutes that just freed up in your schedules."

Try something new

Don't get stuck in a sexual rut. Instead of being bummed out, take it as an opportunity to inject some novelty into your routine. Weedmark suggests visiting a couples-friendly adult store together. "The point is to find a new product that will be a bonding experience and to give you both a laugh or two."

Show affection

Terri Cole, relationship expert and the founder of the Real Love Revolution, says there are many small ways to show your partner you're still into her. "To reignite the heat, I suggest leaving sweet/sexy notes in pockets, briefcase, under a pillow etc.," she says. Or, go big: "Get a hotel room, add lingerie to the mix or give a full-body massage that leads to slow, hot sex."

"TINY FURNITURE" — FilmStruck

"Girls" is inching toward the finish line, making this a good time to venture back to Lena Dunham's initial triumph. Arriving at the tail end of the "mumblecore" not-quite movement, her 2010 movie stuck out from the pack by being a) tightly written and b) handsomely filmed. And of course, there's Dunham's signature voice, too. Aura, her "Tiny Furniture" hero, is a similar-but-different creation than Hannah Horvath — an aimless postgraduate who holes up in the swank Manhattan digs of her mother (Laurie Simmons). Jemima Kirke, Alex Karpovsky and bad sex are already present and accounted for, as is Dunham's worldview, in which she both celebrates and brutally deconstructs the life of the young, neurotic and privileged.

Before they were Hannah Horvath and Jessa Johanson, Lena Dunham and Jemima Kirke starred in 2010's "Tiny Furniture." IFC FILMS

"FRAILTY" — Netflix Instant

Bill Paxton made his directorial debut with 2001's "Frailty," now on Netflix. IFC FILMS

Because the internet is terrible, there aren't a lot of Bill Paxton movies to watch in the wake of his out-of-nowhere death. One of our finest character actors racked up an epic list of movie-stealing credits over the years, only five of which presently live on Netflix. Of those, we recommend "Nightcrawler" and "Frailty," the latter one of a mere two films he helmed himself (apart from the dubiously titled Shia LaBeouf golf movie "The Greatest Game Ever Played"). In his "Night of the Hunter"-esque spooker, the actor plays a father who one day announces that God has granted him the ability to see people possessed by demons — a claim doubted by at least one of his tweenage sons. As he goes about killing possible innocents, Paxton walks the line between charismatic and dangerous. The movies just lost one of their least-predictable performers, and this is one of his finest turns.

Jim Broadbent's memories of winning an Oscar are a little fuzzy. It was 2002, and the acclaimed English actor won Best Supporting Actor for "Iris," in which he played the older version of writer John Bayley opposite Judi Dench, as novelist Iris Murdoch. Then again, who needs a memory? After all, there's video of it, right there on YouTube.

"I've never watched that," Broadbent says, chuckling. "I think I'd probably be embarrassed to see it again. Quite a lot of that has to do with how I forgot to thank two of the producers during my acceptance speech. I don't like to remind myself of that."

Broadbent is a man of many faces. He can be over-the-top, as in "Moulin Rouge!" He can be lovable, as the dad of the "Bridget Jones" films.

GETTY

And he can be gritty; he's made four theatrical features with the legendary Mike Leigh. (That includes "Topsy-Turvy," our favorite of his turns.)

The real Broadbent, though, is shy, quiet, modest almost to a fault. His sentences trail off, and they're filled with nervous chuckles. When you get him going, though, he can be philosophical and insightful, and very honest about life and about himself. You get the sense that he takes a diversity of roles to explore how everyone else lives.

So it goes with "The Sense of an Ending," a too-rare film with Broadbent at the center. He plays Tony Webster, a retired divorcee who flashes back to his youth when he learns about the passing of an old acquaintance. He starts to reflect on a life of regrets, of failures, some of them romantic, all while chatting with (and sometimes bothering) his ex-wife (Harriet Walker) and an old flame (Charlotte Rampling). Based on the novel by Julian Barnes, it deals a hero who hasn't gained much confidence with age.

"He's actually not really grown-up," Broadbent says. "A lot of us older people who like to think we're mature and grown-up and know what we're about, I think we're still anxious and vulnerable and as arrogant and flawed as when we were 20. We just get better at disguising it, really. We become better at editing our life and behaving, supposedly, properly. But we're still as complicated as we were when we were students, in many ways."

That's a feeling some of us suspect is true even as early as in our 30s. "I'm constantly astonished that I'm 67 years old and approaching 70. I think I'm just starting to think maybe somewhere down the line I'll get the hang of things. You never feel you've gotten there, that you've achieved any sort of wisdom."

"Sorry to lay that on you," he adds, chuckling again.

Outdoor envy

The Chelsea penthouse at 261 W. 25th St. features a private roof cabana with a full kitchen. ALL PHOTOS CORE

These spaces will make you wish it was spring.

CRISTABELLE TUMOLA
@CristabelleT

Despite a surprise March snow, spring is just days away. That means New Yorkers will emerge from hibernation to enjoy the outdoors again. The lucky ones will get to enjoy their own outdoor spaces, from tiny balconies to actual backyards.

Here are two homes with outdoor spaces that will make you wish for that warm weather to hurry up.

261 W. 25th St., 7BPH

This two-bedroom, two-and-a-half-bath apartment has its own private penthouse roof cabana. The cabana features a full kitchen and is professionally landscaped with irrigation.

"I believe to have a private cabana in the metropolitan area is very special, especially if the cabana has wonderful views and is equipped for entertaining as this one is at The Seymour," said Lawrence Treglia, broker at Core.

211 East 13th St.

When you're forced to spend your time inside, this Chelsea apartment features a full wall of casement windows, including in the master suite, and wire-brushed solid oak floors.

211 E. 13th St., PHF
$3,495,000

Even when the weather is somewhat chilly, the private roof terrace of this penthouse condo will remain cozy with its wood-burning fireplace encased by jet-mist granite.

With more than 730 square feet, the terrace also features a built-in Wolf gas barbecue and Sonos-ready surround sound, lighting and irrigation systems. It is beautifully landscaped, including two Japanese maple trees and five cherry trees.

The inside showstopper of this three-bedroom, three-bathroom corner home is an iron and oak staircase. Other highlights include 9-foot-2-inch ceilings, wide-plank oak flooring throughout and radiant heated floors in all the bathrooms.

Pick these 5 NCAA Tournament upsets on your March Madness bracket

Don't be afraid to take some big swings when picking your 2017 bracket.

EVAN MACY
@evan_macy
evan.macy@metro.us

We think Florida Gulf Coast has the potential to be Cinderellas again. GETTY IMAGES

Every year, millions of college basketball fans pick their brackets, act timidly when choosing a 14, 13 or 12 seed to advance, and then kick themselves when they watch it happen (or half watch it happen while pretending to work on the best Thursday and Friday in all of sports).

This year there is the potential for upset specials up and down the four regions, and below we'll break down the five most likely. Pick them if you dare.

No. 12 UNC Wilmington over No. 5 Virginia

When big upsets occur, they almost always startle a big conference juggernaut that didn't see it coming. In No. 5 Virginia's case, the writing is on the wall. UNCW has a prolific offense while the Cavaliers rely on a stout defense. But Virginia is young and their defense can falter, as it did toward the end of the season. The 22-10 Cavs lost six of eight, then won four in a row, but then fell to Notre Dame by 15 points in the ACC Tournament. The Irish play very similarly to the Seahawks. Ranking 27th in RPI, 29-5 UNCW is better than a 12, and could do some real damage.

No. 14 Florida Gulf Coast over No. 3 Florida State

One of the most exciting upsets in college hoops history was when No. 15 Florida Gulf Coast, in one of its first seasons ever as a Division I team, shocked No. 2 Georgetown in 2013. The program has since become a powerhouse in the Atlantic Sun and have won 19 of their last 21 games heading into the tournament. They won the regular season and tournament crown and have their eyes set on upsetting in-state rivals the Seminoles. FGCU (26-7) scores nearly all of its points inside the arc and shoots over 57 percent on 2-pointers. Florida State (25-8) faltered in its conference tournament, dropping in the ACC finals to Notre Dame. This could be Cinderella part two if Florida Gulf Coast converts a high volume of high-percentage shots.

No. 12 Middle Tennessee over No. 5 Minnesota

The Gophers showed some big weaknesses in the Big 10 Tournament as they were picked apart by eventual champions Michigan. They barely average six more points than their opponents and have been OK, not great, against ranked teams. Only four times since 1985 has at least one No. 12 seed failed to defeat a five-seed in a single tournament and Middle Tennessee, ranked with the 35th best RPI in the nation could be the best bet for one of these such upsets. MTSU went 30-4 this season and beat Vanderbilt by 23 points. According to fivethirthyeight.com they have a 48 percent chance of winning, among the best for any underdog.

No. 11 Xavier over No. 6 Maryland

These two teams are incredibly evenly matched, as Xavier sports an RPI rank of 36 while Maryland is 34th. The Musketeers are big and can rebound as good as any team in the nation. Despite going just 9-9 in the Big East, they played a difficult schedule and have a favorable matchup in the first round. Maryland relies on guard play, particularly that of leading scorer Melo Tremble. Battling in the below-average Big 10, Maryland has lost six of its last 10 games, a trend it will fight hard to buck when things tip off Thursday.

No. 11 Rhode Island over No. 6 Creighton

The A-10 has historically had a good track record in the first round of the NCAA Tournament, and the Rhodies appear best suited to be the conferences representative in the Round of 32. No. 11 seeds in the tourney are just 13-15 since 2010. Both Creighton and Rhode Island (24-9) made deep conference tournament runs and are playing some of their best ball. Each has RPI and BPI numbers inside the top 35, with Rhode Island boasting a 3-1 record against AP top 25 squads. They are also 10-2 in their last 12, in comparison to the Blue Jays (25-9) who are 6-6 in that span.

Aries What appears to be an impulsive move to some will in truth be well-planned and executed. Don't let someone's uncertainty cause you to doubt a personal decision.

Taurus Take control of situations that concern your assets, health or occupation. Don't wait to see what happens, when you should step up and manipulate the situation.

Gemini Stay focused on building your assets. Professional changes will put you in a better position to rise to the top. Invest in what you want to pursue.

Cancer An unusual destination will prompt you to consider options that you have neglected to explore in the past. Don't limit what you can do.

Leo Be careful when moving forward. Get all the facts before making a commitment. Anger will take charge if you let someone get away with something.

Virgo Take the initiative to set your plans in motion. Being proactive will pay off and show others that you mean business. It's what you do, not what you say, that counts.

Libra Money matters will lead to emotional stress and uncertainty. Joint ventures will not turn out as hoped, leaving you in a precarious position if you didn't take precautions.

Scorpio Emotional matters will creep up on you. Look for alternative ways to deal with trouble. Explosive tactics will not bring you the satisfaction you need to move forward.

Sagittarius The help you offer others will put you in a good position. Sharing experiences with colleagues will ensure that you avoid facing certain problems.

Capricorn Don't get involved in situations that require force or that present a physical challenge. Protect against insult and injury when dealing with demanding individuals.

Aquarius A financial opportunity will be presented if you take part in events that deal with causes that concern you. Reconnect with someone from your past.

Pisces Get the facts and prepare to act fast. An opportunity will not be available forever. Set boundaries and rules when dealing with partnerships. EUGENIA LAST
